These drawings are conceptual-only and are for the convenience of reference. They should not be relied upon as representations, warranties or implied, of the final detail of the residence. Units shown are examples of unit types and may not reflect actual units. Shaded areas indicate floor areas are unique for a particular unit type and are measured to the exterior boundaries of the exterior walls and the centers of interior, non-bearing walls, and to 1/2 foot out from the area that would be determined by using the insulation and definition of the outer set forth in the documents which primarily only includes the interior structure between the non-bearing walls and exterior structure (exterior walls). Total floor measurements of rooms and form on the floorplan are generally taken at the greatest points of each open room (as if the room were a perfect rectangle), without regard for any insets. Accordingly, the area of the actual room will typically be smaller than the product obtained by multiplying the stated height times width. All dimensions are approximate and may vary with actual construction, and all floor plans and cross-sections plans are subject to change.
